

Forgotten Past

Von Senpai99

Kapitel 1: Deja Vu

The alarm annoyed me so i just sat up and stopped it. I wasn't fully awake yet but after a few seconds i stood up and walked to the bathroom after taking some clothes from my closet. I turned on the water then stripped from my clothes and pushed myself under the cold jet of water that immediately woke up. Today i would say goodbye to the human world, well i'm not sad at all.....i don't have any friends here and basically even at school no one even knows i exist. After washing myself and my hair i get out and dry myself up with the towel then get my clothes on, i then dry my hair and brush my teeth then adjust a little my make up; all i do is put some mascara on and some lip gloss, i'm not really the girly type of girl but i am going to a party after all.

In the end i walk out the door and shut it then i leave my keys near the door, i already told someone to take the keys. As i'm headed towards the little forest near my house i keep having the feeling i'm being watched....but every time i turn around i only see the little girl from my neighbourhood. She has white hair like a snowflake and beautiful blue eyes, she's younger than me and i often see her wondering in front of my house but she always ran off as i wanted to talk to her. I try to ignore her and enter the forest as i get to a spot i look around to make sure no one was watching and i realised she was no longer behind me. As i moved my hand a portal opened and i walked through it ending up in a forest near a sparkling blue waterfall as i got some water splashed on me from it.

"So i am finally home" i say sarcastically then blink as i hear some horses and quickly get behind the waterfall as i see two boys and a girl stop by the lake and they get off their horses.

"Gabe come on you said you'd hang out with us before the party" said the girl; she had blonde hair and some big brown eyes. I could tell she was around 16 from what she looked like.

"Alright alright Soph i will. But don't forget to get ready alright?" He chuckled and pat her head; he seemed around my age and strangely....he seemed familiar. He had black-brown hair and some emerald green eyes.

"Guys!" The other boy shouted and they both looked at him; he was around the age of the girl maybe one year older. He had brown hair and some greenish blue eyes. "Someone else is here....i can feel his/her energy"

I gasped not sure what to do as suddenly i can feel all of them look at me as they could see through the waterfall, luckily they didn't get to come close as some loud noise as a signal comes from behind them and they all get back on the horses.

"That was close" i sight relieved then got back on my realising how familiar the path looked to me as i kept getting a deja vu feeling.

"I should better already be dressed and with my mask"

I go somewhere between the trees and softly move my hand as ice covers my body in the form of a dress then it shatters as a dress with three different colours appears on me. As i finish with my dress i put on the mask i had in my hand and put my hand back to let my hair down as it reached my shoulders.

A.V:

After getting herself prepared the young girl walks towards the palace that is now visible to her and stops by the gates.

"What is your name and why are you here?" Demanded one of the guards looking at her examining her.

"I came here for the party,here is my invitation" she said and handed over her invitation.

The guard tells her where she has to go then bows opening the gates. The girl walks through them and enters the palace as some weird feeling hits her when she walks on the alley then leads through the garden towards the doors. It must be just my imagination right?. She thought to herself and softly followed the butler that has offered to show her the way.

To be continue...