Worlds behind your voice

Today I started thinking again, (about thins that should have left my mind a long time ago) because people told me things, because they thought that the things had left me. But well, they didn't.

You know, you should probably know all this stuff, but I'll probably never tell you. And maybe you shouldn't know it at all. One can never know, until one tries.

There is this something about you, I don't know what it is, it's just something...in you voice.

You know, I didn't even notice you until you talked to me for the first time. It was your voice and that strangeness that separates you from the crowd.

I remember when you read the story from our English book to me. I closed my eyes. I could have listened forever. There are worlds behind your voice tat I want to explore.

I hear your voice in my head telling me stories about stars dancing around the moon.

I don't even have to look at you or touch you, all I want to do is listen, I'm sure you have enough stories to tell. I'll just it still and listen, listen.

And I'll remember every word you say, keeping your voice in my heart, and listen to a happy story when I lay awake at night, I my room, where the silence echos from the walls.

The time will come, when I'll tell you all this. And maybe you'll listen, and you know what? We could just talk.
